Never Wrote Home.

"What do you know of your son's life and occupation since he left home?"

"Nothing; he has never written me a line," said the father, "We have received occasional newspapers from Boston, but outside of that we have known nothing of him since he left his home. He was here for about three hours September a year ago, but when he left us he said nothing of where he was going. "Was he ever employed here in Richmond?" asker the reporter.

"He was with the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, in the office of Mr. Travers, for many years," answered the younger man, brokenly. "He was as fine as boy as ever breathed."

At first they refused to disclose the whereabouts of Mrs. Amy Haynes, but finally consented to do so on the representation that she should be informed at once of her husband's predicament. They idd also of the estrangement between Haynes and his wife, saying that drink had caused the separation.

The congregation met yesterday morning after the services, and extended a unanimous call to Mr. Hall.

It seems to be assured that Mr. Ball will accept, and it is oxpected that he will resign from his present pastorate on Wednesday. He is expected November 1st.

Mr. Ball is a Virginian, having been born in Roanoke, where he spent a large part of his life. He is a graduate of Richmond College.

Mr. Ball is a man of commanding appearance and of fine attainments, and it is expected that he will be a most acceptable pastor.
